Welcome!

I'm pleased to share our online Consultancy and Engineering Awards brochure – the first time it has gone paperless as we move towards a more sustainable and Net Zero future.

I'm also looking forward to welcoming you all to London Marriott Grosvenor Square on Thursday 19 January 2023 from 6.30pm.

I would like to take this opportunity of thanking headline sponsors BECG for their generous support for this year's awards. I would also like to extend our thanks to the individual category sponsors, as well as our media partner Infrastructure Intelligence, for their support too.

As well as the team at the Association for Consultancy and Engineering (ACE), today's event was made possible thanks to the panel of judges – far too numerous to mention individually – who gave up their spare time to sift through and consider over 100 entries.

Finally, I want to thank you for joining us and demonstrating your support for both ACE and the industry.

After an enforced absence and challenging circumstances for us all, we're delighted to once again be able to host the Awards as an in-person celebration.

I hope you can join me in taking a small moment to reflect on how fortunate we are to be able to celebrate together once again.

I look forward to seeing you share your good news on social media - #CandEAwards2022

Your host

Katie Prescott is one of the UK's best-known business journalists. A familiar voice to millions of listeners after a decade reporting for the BBC, Katie was the senior lead business presenter for Radio 4's Today Programme and a business correspondent across BBC News on TV, radio and online.

She's now the technology business editor for The Times and a weekly columnist for the newspaper's award-winning business section. Across the fast-changing landscape of tech, media and telecoms, Katie brings all the key stories to readers, listeners and viewers across The Times' platforms.

At the BBC, Katie worked across all the corporation's major news outlets as the on-screen face and voice explaining and analysing the tumultuous changes wrought by COVID-19, the European debt crisis and new technology, in addition to the systemic challenges of sustainability and climate change.

She has travelled extensively for her work, from Tanzania and Rwanda to China and America, as well as working as a journalist in the BBC's New York Bureau.

Katie has a degree in Modern Languages from Oxford and lives in London with her two children.

I'm delighted to be hosting the next Consultancy and Engineering Awards. The sector has a huge role to play in creating a more sustainable future for us all, which is why I can't wait to join you to celebrate the inspirational people, innovative projects and brilliant companies which will deliver it.

2022 shortlist

Inclusive Employer of the Year (sponsored by Building Inclusivity)

Awarded to a consultancy firm in the built environment that has not only championed the continual development of its people but nurtured a truly equal, diverse and inclusive workforce. Not only will they have leading commitments to equality, but tangible examples of practical implementation.

Best International Project

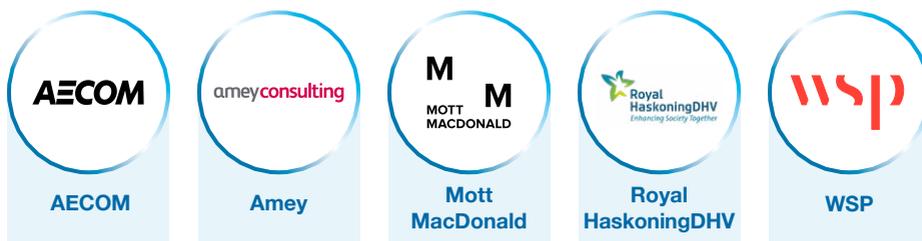

Awarded to a consultancy firm in the built environment for an exceptional international project. It should have delivered for their clients and stakeholders while meeting broader goals on Net Zero and social value. Shortlisted projects will have strong commitment to collaboration and partnership, and have been welcomed by the local community.

2022 shortlist

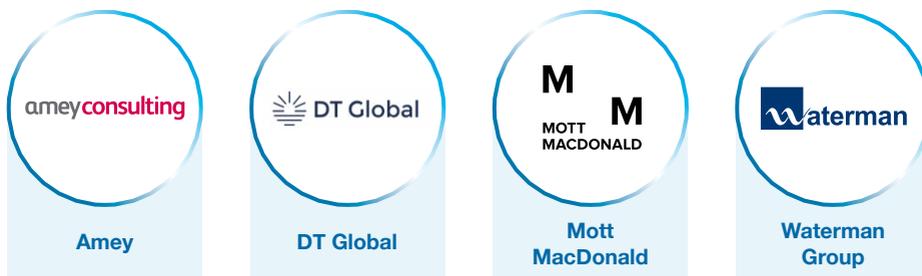

Best Digital Project

Awarded to a consultancy firm in the built environment for an exceptional digital programme or project. This could be focused on value creation for a client, a design simulation for construction, or the creation of digital tools/twins. Shortlisted projects will have used digital innovation to make a real difference to clients and stakeholders, as well as to the community.

Best Transport Project

Awarded to a consultancy firm in the built environment for an exceptional programme or project which delivers a shift-change for transport users. It should deliver to end users while achieving broader Net Zero and social value goals. Shortlisted projects will have a strong commitment to collaboration and partnership, and have been well received by the public.

2022 shortlist

Best Social Value Project (sponsored by WSP)

Awarded to a consultancy firm in the built environment for an exceptional programme or project which delivers value to society. It should have considered, measured and achieved social value at every stage. Shortlisted projects will have a strong commitment to collaboration and partnership, and have been well received by the public.

Best Net Zero Project

Awarded to a consultancy firm in the built environment for an exceptional Net Zero programme or project. It should be a green exemplar, have demonstrated quantifiable carbon reduction, or promoted the benefits of a Net Zero approach to clients and stakeholders. Shortlisted projects will have also delivered Net Zero and environmental gains for the wider community.

2022 shortlist

Apprentice of the Year (sponsored by Mott MacDonald)

Awarded to a talented individual apprentice who has shown outstanding progress and commitment to their own personal development, is progressing on a recognised training scheme with an organisation working in the built environment, and who has made a positive difference to that business.
